

Enterprise Risk Management

How do you thrive as a business?

The market is tough. People's needs are becoming more complex.
New standards, funding systems and regulations only increase the challenge.

We're talking about risk.

How you deal with it will set you apart.

RISK

A thriving business has a purposeful and confident attitude to the future.

It is mature about risk—willing to take it when it will help achieve its goals. Its people make smart, timely decisions. They see opportunity. They examine the business and its environment for ways to improve.

And it's a good place to work. A thriving business gives its community, clients and board confidence. Because it's accountable. Because it's resilient. Because it rewards those who take responsibility. It acts like an enterprise, rather than a collection of silos.

We want you to thrive.

The key to that is managing risk in a consistent and effective way across the whole enterprise.

That's enterprise risk management.

ERM doesn't just help you to avoid harm and get the right insurance—though it will do both.

And it's not simply about compliance with in-house procedures and government regulations.

ERM matters because it helps you perform better. This is real improvement that your board, staff, clients and communities will see.

This is what matters to us. We want to work with you to realise the benefits of an enterprise-wide approach to managing risk.

That's what sets us apart.

Insurance helps you recover after a harmful event.

To have this option you need to be insurable—and remain so in the foreseeable future.

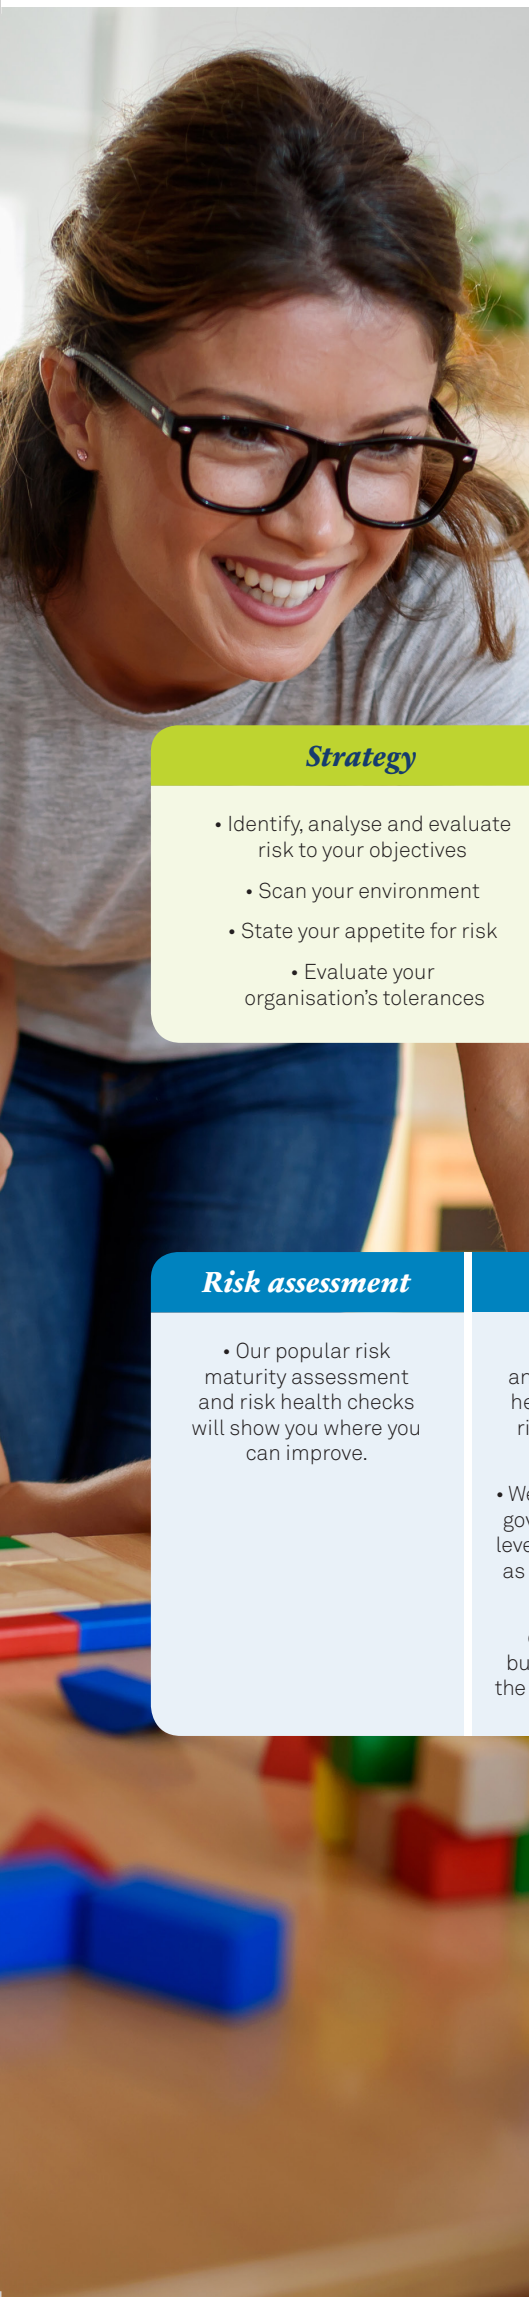

That's what enterprise-wide risk management helps you do.

Effective ERM will generate the information needed to assess your risks. That will help your broker find the right insurance.

It also helps you manage risk effectively, which will reduce your costs and the likelihood and severity of claims.

Enterprise risk management is how you thrive in business
